Students planned and implemented a nutrition and exercise activity fair for elementary students.

The students worked in teams and researched nutrition, exercise and healthy careers. Students planned the fair using information gathered from research activities and class activities.

The students had the opportunity to increase their knowledge and awareness of health and fitness while teaching it to the younger students. Some of the objectives of the day were to identify fat and sugar content, calculate calories of certain fast foods and snacks and identify alternative food choices. The students created displays for nutrition, exercise and a healthy body image. They found facts on eating disorders and related health concerns to share with elementary students.

Sixth Grade

The sixth grade participated in Operation Christmas Child this year. They packed four boxes full of toys, hygiene products, and candy for children around the world who received it for Christmas. These gifts went to children who have never had a Christmas before.

In reading, the class has completed many books including James and the Giant Peach, Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, The BFG, and Holes. After reading the books, they made special performances in front of the class.

In math, sixth grade learned about complicated multiplication and division with decimals and fractions. Most importantly, they learned how to apply this kind of math to their daily lives.

In science, the class has learned about "Our Changing Earth." They learned about plate tectonics, mountains, earthquakes, and volcanoes.

In social studies, they learned about many different civilizations and ancient cultures.

The fourth grade has been doing lots of new and interesting things in their classroom. In social studies they made covered wagons and read Little House on the Prairie.

In math they worked on rounding with the help of the new SmartBoards. The fourth grade this year is the new eMINTS classroom. This program allows access to a computer for each student. The students stay busy with research activities.

Third grade had an exciting year in their new classroom. They started the year off reading Lizard Meets Ivana the Terrible, and Afternoon on the Amazon. Writing stories that have a setting, characters, problem, and solution with a beginning, middle, and end was what the third grade worked hard to accomplish in English. In science they learned how the Earth, moon, and sun are different, and about the Earth's movements.

Working with money to practice addition and subtraction, and telling time to the nearest minute were valuable lessons learned in math. Discussing rural, suburban, and urban communities and making models of each kept them busy in social studies. To go along with their rainforest theme, the third graders were kept on their toes by selling rainforest t-shirts. As the year progressed, the third graders continued to learn using their new SmartBoard, which is an interactive white board located in their classroom.

Second Grade

Above: Second grader, Kayla Snelling, displays the dinosaur she made for her class presentation during their unit on dinosaurs.

The second graders embarked on a journey full of reading to begin this school year. Tall tales such as Johnny Appleseed, Pecos Bill, and Paul Bunyan were a big hit. Along with these stories the kids did a variety of activities with apples and wrote their own tall tales. The students enjoyed reading and retelling Millions of Cats as well. Second grade learned about crowded conditions on the Mayflower by reading The First Thanksgiving, and were also able to taste food similar to what the Pilgrims had to eat. In English they worked on writing good paragraphs. Working with rulers and yardsticks, learning capacity measurements, and addition and subtraction kept them busy in math. In science they did a unit on dinosaurs and created their very own to present in front of the class. Science also took them into dark caves to explore the characteristics of bats, and to the Arctic to learn about penguins.

Hard Workers

This small group of first graders have been very busy this year with many fun and exciting activities.

At the beginning of the year they started out with 14 students but lost 2 along the way: Kristi Patterson and Melvin Jones. This year like many other years the first graders are able to write letters to the Knox County first grade.

They sent pictures they made to the soldiers and set up and ran their own small businesses for Christmas. Two things the first graders will never forget are their weekly spelling tests and Word Wall Words.

Elementary Happenings

Elementary is a “Cool” Place to Be!!

The elementary has had a very exciting year. They have enjoyed their new building complete with central air. The kindergartners showed great school spirit by making posters and performing a cheer for the state bound girls basketball team. The highlight of the first grade students this year was their visit from their Knox Co. pen pals. The second grade students had a fun time reading the story “Stone Soup” and afterwards got to enjoy a bowl of their own. Third and fourth grade are fully equipped with a computer to every two students. The fifth grade students showed off their acting skills in their annual Thanksgiving Day Play. The sixth grade students enjoy a year with new teacher, Corey Milles.

Shooting Out The Lights

The 2004 Adair County R-II High School girls basketball Tigers completed a perfect 32-0 season by rightfully claiming the Class 1 MSHSAA Championship through a 50-35 victory over Walnut Grove on March 20, 2004, in the Hearnes Center Field House on the University of Missouri-Columbia campus. With a combined two-year win-loss record of 60-2, the 2004 State Champion Lady Tigers took home their school's second consecutive basketball title. In their successful run to the top of Class 1 girls' basketball, the Lady Tigers handily overcame the Sectional challenge from Silex with a score of 53-47; a Quarterfinal contest with New Franklin, 55-38; and a Semifinal battle against Chadwick, 50-44.

Senior Wills

I, Karissa Clark, being of sound mind and long legs, will to all of the under class men the ability to always get along with their classmates.

I, Chase Matthew Cole, of short stature and great clown-like craziness, will the following: to my great sister, the ability to dribble the basketball-left handed and not be scared (she can still shoot better than me); to the future boys basketball teams, the ability to protect themselves in the games; to Nathan Osborn, the ability to shoot a basketball without breaking his own ankle; and to Travis Hettinger, the ability to jump higher than 2 inches off the ground and a new guy to hangout with to find all the girls for him.

I, Brooke Ima Crandall, being of extraordinary belly-rolling ability and rock hard abs, will the following: to Jenny Elsea, the ability to say "NO" and stick to it; to Danny Clarkson, my full-sized pool table and my awesome "basement" party-throwing skills; to Holly Hazen and Dani Moyer, my WNBA-like post moves and rebounding techniques; to Brent Platz, every little thing on my messy carpet and all the icebreakers mints in the world; to Hailee Kelsey, my basketball jerseys - wear #25 proudly; and last, but not least, to the vicious triangle (Katie, Jenny, & I), I will the strength to survive in a much larger scale triangle next year.

I, Brooke "Z BOD" Drummond will the following: to Stefanie McKim, my outlook on life which is have fun; to Brooke Salter, my ability to party hard; to Dani Moyer, the ability to lighten up; and to Julie Shahan, the ability to be not so blonde.

I, Jenny "G" Elsea - Talbert - Moyer - Mountain - McCoy - Johnson - Hettinger - Cole - Paver, being of blonde hair and personality to match, will the following: to Holly Hazen my first base position and my lovely dating skills; to Mrs. Reese, a stripe (you know, like a fish); to Kimberly Elsea, all of my milk chores; to Nathan Shaver - my husband- the ability to find a new wife; to my vicious triangle - Brooke and Katie - may you have years of silence; and to Brent, Jeremiah, and Danny, my super grammar skills and my favorite movie Shrek - Love, your Ogre!

I, Tiffany Higgins, of big blue eyes and short stature, will the following: to my brother Hunter, the ability to survive the bus ride for the next 3 years since I won't be there to drive him to school; to Jennifer Shahan, a road map so that she can find the right roads to make it to college on time; to Tiffany Owen, the ability to find a new shopping buddy that can actually figure out how to operate the fitting room doors without her assistance; and to Julie Shahan, the ability to stay out of trouble her next two years of high school since her "partner in crime" will be gone.

I, Alicia Marie Longano, being of highly unnatural toes and a phobia of pink, will the following: to my little sister Marissa (B. Mia), the ability to live up to your name; to Cody Baringer, the supreme knowledge that "Life is complicated;" to the Academic Bowl team (Danny, Holly, Brent, Jeremiah), the ability to beat Macon Co. once and for all; and finally, to Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Chambers, and Nurse Sheri, a HUGE thank you for the support you have given me (Mrs. C), the opportunity you offered me (Mrs. B), and the advice you knew I needed, but didn't want (Nurse S.).

Right: Senior Chase Cole shoots pool at Leisure World on the last day of school. All students k-12 were treated to a fun day of roller skating, bowling, shooting pool and playing arcades.

Middle: Seniors Jennifer Shahan, Tiffany Higgins, Kristina Osborn, Jenny Elsea, and Brooke Crandall enjoy skating at Leisure World after a fifth grade basketball game.

Top: The girls get ready for their fourth grade field trip to the St. Louis Zoo.

I, J.C. Moots, of great hunting and shooting skills, will the following: to Travis Hettinger, the ability to kill a big Tom (turkey) like I did; and to Chelsey Collop, my spandex shirt in order to make her run fast like me.

I, Jared Osborn, of great body tone and humorous jokes, will the following: to Holly Hazen, the ability to bench at least 100 lbs by the end of her senior year; to Brooke Crandall, my rock hard abs instead of that flabby gut of hers; and to Nathan Osborn, my on going book of "The Most Retarded Things Ever Said."

I, Kristin Osborn, being a back-to-back state champion, a triathlete for four consecutive years, and having a great bod and personality, will the following: to Mrs. Reeves, another great student to hang with in 3 days of ISS; to Brooke Salter, my art skills and running skills for track next year - go get 'em Brooke; to the basketball team, all the talent I can possibly give to win our school another state title; to Mrs. Chambers, the ability to survive another year with Nathan and Nate and still stay sane; to Dani Moyer, all the fun I've had and don't quit on your final year - stick everything out; and to the others left in school, the friendship you have given was excellent - I'll miss you guys!

I, Jessica Ann Rudd, being of short stature, strong mind and soul, will the following: to the upcoming seniors, the ability to be yourself for you. Don't try to be something you're not just to impress somebody or look cool; to Marissa Longano, the ability to smile everyday even though I'm not there to make you; and last, but not least, to my vo-tech buddies: Travis Hettinger, Travis Montgomery, Ricky Bunch, and John Mountain, the ability to show the girls on the bus next year the same affection that you showed me.

I, Jennifer Shahan, of an extremely tall, tan-like figure, and wonderful grace will the following: to all of my little sister's (Julie) friends, a dollar because she will be looking for someone else to bum off of next year; to Kellie Primmer, the ability to help Stefanie McKim remember to shut off her car and take the keys out before she locks the doors; to Hunter Higgins (Hunter bunter), my alarm clock so he can wake up early enough to get his hair fixed just right and still catch the bus on time; and finally, to Tiffany Higgins, the ability to find someone else to talk to through all of her classes next year at college, if not you just might end up paying attention. The next four years aren't going to be the same.

I, Joe Shaver, of short temper and great comical entertainment, will the following: to Chase Cole, the ability to keep himself and me out of trouble; to Travis Hettinger, the ability to spin his tires without getting caught by his parents; and to Nathan Shaver, the ability to get his Yoder stuck in the weirdest places as I have.

I, Jessica Anne Thrasher, being of quiet nature and mysterious eyes, will to the students at BHS the ability to stay true to yourself and have fun with everything.

I, Katie Thudium, being of extremely poor hearing and superb dancing ability will the following: to Danielle Lowe and Holly Hazen (a.k.a. the possum posse), my possum hunting skills and remember - never abort the mission until it is complete; to Travis "Homeslice" Hettinger, my awesome boxing skills so one day he can actually win a fight; to the nerd bowl team, my "swank" and good luck next year (I know you will miss my "sway" Lisa Frank cards); and to my best friends Brooke Crandall and Jenny Elsea (the vicious triangle), a piece of floss so they will never have to use a strand of hair.
